THIRTY-SEVENTH YEAR, NO. 223 BISMARCK, NORTH DAKOTA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 20, 1917. FIVE CENTS

CONSPIRACY TO HOARD GRAIN HINTED

AGENTS SAID TO BE URGING THAT WHEAT BE HELD

Reported That Agitators Are Scouring North Dakota in Automobiles

GOVERNMENT MAY FIND A NEED FOR INVESTIGATION

Deliveries in Minneapolis Fifty Per Cent Short—Some Influence Seems at Work

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 20.—Centering about Minneapolis, and with the whole northwest as its field of origin, an adverse war time problem that relates to the food supply of the United States and its allies was believed today to have reached proportions where the government soon will have to give it attention, according to a story printed here.

There is, and has been since Sept. 1, a remarkably light movement of wheat from the farms. Fall plowing, the desire to sell other grain first, labor scarcity and dissatisfaction with the new federal grades are reasons. Price dissatisfaction also is known to have been and still to be a factor.

Urged Not to Sell.

It was reported today that in North Dakota men in automobiles are traveling through the state telling the farmers not to sell their wheat. This report says that farmers who are dissatisfied with the price and who lean to the side of discontent with governmental regulations fall in with the suggestion at once. Others are won over, the report says, by calculations made in pencil on the backs of envelopes, while the farmer and the agitator stand talking. The farmer is shown figures thereby to fortify the statement that the government eventually will reopen the matter of price and make it higher.

Hold for Gamble.

To hold the wheat on the farm, borrow money on it, and gamble the interest payment against the chance of prices reopening, is the advice that is being given, these reports say.

Today Minneapolis had 237 cars, compared with 536 a year ago, a loss of 50 per cent.

Elevator Man Talks.

Alex Stewart of the Monarch Elevator company, Minneapolis, said:

"Recently in Barnesville, Minn., I was told that men traveling in automboiles had been there and that they were going west into North Dakota, and that their purpose was to make a trip over the state and to tell the farmers not to sell their wheat," Mr. Stewart said.

Letters Go Out.

Tonight 5,000 letters embodying drastic changes in the grain movement will go out from the office of the commission firms to their country correspondents.

Those letters, in the form of appeals, to be followed, it was intimated, by action more drastic if they did not have effect, would result in:

Immediate shipments to Minneapolis of all spring wheat in sight at country stations.

No further shipments of barley, oats, flax, or rye until further advised.

Immediate loading and billing of every available freight car.

Instant notification of the Minneapolis office of the grain food administration corporation if railroads are not furnishing cars.

Notice to all farmers that spring wheat and not coarse grains should be brought into town if they expect acceptance.

Demands Immediate Action.

Mr. Carey said that the situation demands immediate action and that the farmers are to be appealed to.

"We are making an appeal," he said. "We expect prompt response We have no further announcement to make, but it may properly be said that we have got to get the wheat movement started, and if this means fails we will have to find other means."

STORY DISCREDITED.

Fargo, N. D., Sept. 20.—The consensus of opinion of farmers in this district is that there is nothing to the story published in Minneapolis to the effect that there is an organized attempt to hold grain from the market.

The reason, they declare, that grain shipments to Minneapolis are short is that the farmers are busily engaged in other work just now, and they know that the price will not be lower than that fixed by the government recently and there are possibilities of its going higher.

The fact that elevators would not accept their grain prior to the fixing of the price of wheat led many to store their grain on their farms, and it is pointed out later on when there is not so much work to do will be time enough to haul it to the market, as the price will be the same.

There were a few reports in some sections which could not, however, be verified that agents working in the interests of the Germans were advising the farmers to hold onto their wheat.

Canadian to Show Prison Camp Abuses

Private Rossiter Produces Mutilated Hands and Claims Chicago Doctor's $1000

CAN BRING OVER ENOUGH VICTIMS TO BREAK HIM

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—Private Rossiter, a Canadian veteran, has announced he intends to claim the $1,000 reward offered by Dr. A. Fuchs, of Chicago, of proof of atrocities committed by the Germans on a prisoner of war. He exhibits his right hand, which he says is deformed, as the result of treatment received in a German prison camp after he was captured in battle, June 4, 1916. The hand, he says, was "wantonly and deliberately" mutilated.

Dr. Fuchs has announced that his entire fortune, estimated at $1,500,000 is ready to defend the Germans against the charges of brutality to prisoners. Rossiter, who has been invalided home and is visiting in Chicago declares if he collects the reward of $1,000 he will finance the transportation of enough victims of alleged atrocities to Chicago to claim Dr. Fuch's entire fortune.

VATICAN DENIES REPLY FROM THE CENTRAL POWERS

Cardinal Gasparri Makes Official Statement to Associated Press Today

TEXT OF GERMAN NOTE EVADES BELGIAN ISSUE

While Contents Will Not Be Made Public Until Saturday, Forecast Is Announced

Rome, Sept. 20—Cardinal Gasparri tonight declared to the Associated Press that the reply of the central powers to the peace proposals had not yet been received at the vatican. This is taken to prove that the statement recently published to the effect that the reply had left Berlin on Saturday is untrue as the document should have arrived in Rome on Tuesday night or this morning.

Cardinal Gasparri believes that the reply of the central powers was held up when Emperor William went to Riga.

The reply of the entente allies to the pope's peace proposals must necessarily arrive after that of the central powers because Great Britain before the compilation of the entente note asks for some information from the vatican which in turn applied for it to the central powers. The latter notified the holy see that the explanation would be obtained in their own reply. On these explanations, therefor, the answer of the entente allies or at least that of Great Britain will depend.

Nothing About Belgum.

Berlin, Sept. 20—While the text of the German reply to the peace proposals will not be announced before Saturday, the Berlin press and parliamentary circles concur in the prediction that the message will not contain specific declarations concerning Belgium.

The fate of that country just now is calling for excessive pan-German frothing due to recurrent rumors that the government had definitely decided to abandon all intention of permanent control in the occupied Belgium territory.

SWEDEN DIRECTS FORMAL PROTEST AGAINST GERMANY

London, Sept. 20.—A Stockholm dispatch to Reuters, Ltd., says the Swedish minister at Berlin has been instructed to protest to Germany against the Luxburg incident, it being "confirmed that German officials seriously abused the confidence of Sweden."

Effort Made to Terrorize Mine-Workers—Americans Merit the War Cross

(By Associated Press)

Early this morning the British infantry "went over the top" on a wide front east of Ypres and the Flanders offensive was on again.

The rush evidently was successful at the outset, for the capture of positions of value were reported.

The renewal of the offensive came after a long pause, in which the preparatory work had been carried on unceasingly.

Early reports did not outline definitely the extent of the front attacked, but a clue seemed to have been furnished by Berlin, which yesterday reported the drum fire to be pounding the line from Houthoulst wood, five miles south of Dixmude, to the river Lys, a distance of about 15 miles.

The Flanders operations were opened this year with the blowing up of the Messines Ridge on June 17 and the capture of the Wytschaete salient by the British, and was continued with the opening of the present great offensive by the combined attack of British and French troops on July 31. Progress on a notable scale continued to be made during August, but in the latter part of that month and during September until now the infantry fighting has largely been confined to local drives and extensive trench raids.

Frome the French front today only artillery activity is reported. The statement covered only last night's operations, and the early reports today did not indicate whether the French in Flanders had joined the renewed drive there.

British Headquarters in France and Belgium (by the Associated Press), Sept. 20.—Field Marshal Haig's offensive began at dawn this morning on the Belgium battle front, and is proceeding with marked success, especially in the crucial sectors between the Ypres and the Roulers railway at Hollebeke.

German infantry is making a most determined resistance to retain this vital ground, and the Teuton artillery is retaliating heavily against the British big guns.

Bitter Fight On.

A bitter fight is in progress in the neighborhood of Inevess Copse Nuns Wood and Glencose Wood. If the attackers maintain the positions to

Townley Asks Uncle Sam to "Investigate"

President of Nonpartisan League Wants Charges of Sedition Proved

WILL BE DONE QUIETLY U. S. ATTORNEY ASSERTS

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 20.—Aroused by reports that the high cost of living conference and the National Nonpartisan league might be disloyal and unpatriotic, and that the league was financed by interests opposed to America, A. C. Townley, president of the league, wrote Albert Jaques, United States district attorney asking him to appoint representatives of the department of justice to investigate the books of the league.

Following is Pres. Townley's letter to Dist. Atty. Jaques:

"Dear Sir: Rumors and insinuations have been rife, and are apparently inspired, that the National Nonpartisan league, with a membership of about 130,000 farmers, is disloyal and unpatriotic, and that the organization is not supporting the government, but is financed by interests opposed to our government.

We, therefore, respectfully ask that he department of justice fully inves-

PATRIOT'S TIME CUT IN HALF BY TOWNLEY MEN

Appeal From Judge Torance to Not Place Hogs Before Stars and Stripes Unpopular

URGES THAT FARMERS BOOST LIBERTY LOAN

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 20—Judge Eli Torance of Minneapolis, speaking before the convention of consumers and producers under the auspices of the National Nonpartisan league urged that farmers back the second Liberty loan.

The appeal of Judge Torance was the first of the convention which did not take into consideration the fact that the price of wheat has been fixed by the government while the prices of other necessities have not been established at a definite figure.

In pleading for the support of the farmers, Judge Torance said:

"The Stars and Stripes cannot be placed at stake while you discuss the price of hogs."

Time Cut Down.

Judge Torance was notified that his time was up when he had spoken only half as long as other speakers of the day.

Wheat Waste Of Millions Of Bushels

Department of Agriculture Urges Careful Harvesting and Threshing

WATCH THE CORNERS AND SAVE STARVING

Washington, Sept. 20.—Specialists in western districts estimate that 20,000,000 bushels of wheat and proportionate quantities of other cereals are annually wasted in harvesting.

The department of agriculture urges farmers to give special attention to the adjustment of machines and to make certain none of the grain is lost with the straw and chaff Care should also be taken to harvest all grain on the corners and edges of the fields. Attention is called to the fact that one bushel of wheat will furnish bread for one person for about 75 days.

SUPREMACY OF SOCIALISTS IS CAUSING ALARM

Cult Opposed to Giving Owners of Property Voice in Government Is in Power

PREMIER KERENSKY KEEPS CLOSE TOUCH

Optimistic Over Result of Conference With Army Leaders—Kaledines Affair Closed

Petrograd, Sept. 20.—The growing supremacy in the council of the soldiers' and workmen's delegates of the Bolsheviki element, whose program eliminates all property-owning classes from a voice in the government, is a development which is causing great concern. The resignation of the executive committee of the council came as a direct result of the adoption of a resolution committing the soldiers' and workmen's delegates to an ultra-socialistic line of conduct.

Will Seek Re-election.

Further, to verify the temper of the council, the retiring members of the executive committee will offer themselves for re-election at the coming meeting.

It is significant that the Moscow council of soldiers' and workmen's delegates yesterday also adopted a program along virtually the same line as the Petrograd council.

Government Optimistic.

Premier Kerensky is at Mohielve, but is keeping in close touch with the situation. The government is optimistic over the result of the conferences between Premier Kerensky and army leaders, and considers the Kaledines incident closed.

Some newspapers say the Maximalists are gaining complete control of the soldiers' and Workmen's delegates and that the situation promises to reach a crisis when the democratic congress meets. The Russia Volia declares the friends of Premier Kerensky in the council of soldiers' and workmen's delegates are losing their influence, and that the premier has determined to address the congress himself.

RESERVATION HAS HAY FOR ENTIRE NORTHWEST

McLaughlin Rancher Declares Crop Is Best in Last 25 Years on Standing Rock

McLaughlin, N. D., Sept. 20.—There is enough hay on Standing Rock reservation to supply three states if it could be cut, states John D. Clark of McLaughlin, who declares that in 35 years on the reservation he never has seen wild hay that can compare with this year's crop. His outfit has put up 15? tons on less than a quarter-section, and Clark declares this was not a particularly choice piece. The land is less than seven miles from the railroad station where the baled hay is delivered for shipment.

LITTLE CHILDREN SEE TRAGEDY WHICH LEAVES THEM WITHOUT FATHER

Hurdsfeld, N D, Sept 20—While attempting to clamber on the front end of a wagon occupied by his little daughters, Walter Weckerly fell under the wheels and his head was crushed, killing him instantly. The deceased was born at Winslow, Ill, in 1867, spent his boyhood in southern Wisconsin, and located on a homestead near Hurdsfeld in 1899. A widow and three children survive.

5,000 PEOPLE ATTEND MANDAN BIGGEST FAIR

Fine Weather Makes Crowds Today Among Largest in History of Exposition

SPECIAL TRAIN WILL BRING VISITORS BACK

Northern Pacific Makes Extra Arrangements for Accomodation of Bismarck

SPECIAL TRAIN TONIGHT.

Agent W. A. McDonald announces that a special train will be run from Mandan to Bismarck this evening for the benefit of the fair crowds. Last evening No. 2 was unable to accommodate the Bismarck visitors, and probably 200 of them were compelled to spend the night in Mandan. This evening a special train will care for this overflow. Mr. McDonald is of the opinion it will leave soon after No. 2, but if sufficient pressure is brought to bear, he may be induced to wait until the Bismarck people have had an opportunity to enjoy the evening attractions.

Mandan, N. D., Sept. 20.—Mandan is entertaining over 5,000 fair visitors today, and the Missouri Slope fair officers are showing the visitors one of the classiest fair programs and agricultural and livestock exhibits ever staged in the middle west. "Dare Devil" Mills held the mammoth crowd spellbound this afternoon with his stunts in the air. The races of yesterday and today have been fast, and the greatest and most successful fair ever held in Mandan is on in full blast. Up to the present time there has not been one accident to mar the enjoyment of the fair.

Tardiness Really Enthused.

Notwithstanding, the fact that torrential rains poured down Tuesday, the opening day, causing the fair to be postponed one day, it served only to stimulate more interest in the coming event. Thousands of people assembled in the city for the opening day. Crowds had plenty of time to get here to enjoy it all, and it appears that they are going to stay until it is over.

Races of Yesterday.

Governor Wilson captured first money in the three heat trot or pace, in competition with Bismarck L., Parson Sym and Boll Dan. Parson Sym took second money. Time, 2:46½.

Big Head won first money in the Indian horse race, and Sam Stilltrack took second. The time was 57 seconds for a half mile.

Indian Boy took first money in the Indian pony race, with Harvey Ear Ring a close second. The purse was $50. Time 58 seconds.

John Bighead won the camp breaking contest in a laughing race over Alexander Bearheart. Purse $10.

Bearhart took first money in the moccasin race over his Indian competitors.

The races today are supposed to be the best the fair association will have to offer The results will be watched with marked interest.

Side Attractions.

The minstrel show being staged nightly in the new Lewis & Clark building is a scream. If you didn't laugh until your sides ached last night it was because you did not attend the home talent minstrels being staged by the home guards

The bowery dance given by the M. A. C. and the Mandan orchestra is entertaining mammoth crowds and doing their part to make the fair a big success.

The Bismarck-Mandan combined band is furnishing good music for the fair.

Soldiers Here.

The boys of the second battalion, Second North Dakota regiment were brought over to the fair today 700 strong They are participating this afternoon in the big program and enjoying the fun at the fair.

MOLDING ROOKEY MEDICOS INTO TRAINED UNITS OF GREAT FIGHTING MACHINE

Doctors Must Go Through Same Course as Ordinary Private to Prepare Them for Important Duties to Come—Civilian Physician Helpless in Face of Military Necessity—Boys Need Cheering, Good Reading Material and Letters From Home.

(Dr. J. O. Arnson, 1st Lieut., M. O. R. C., U. S. A.)

Medical Officers' Training Camp, Fort Riley, Kansas, Sept. 20.—To the uninitiated camp life usually appeals as a vacation consisting of pleasure, well interspersed with rest, but the camp life of the doctors who have given their services to the country is in vivid contrast to this. The train- medical officers are given is more strenuous and as exacting as that of the enlisted recruit. This thoroughness is for a double purpose, to toughen the physique to better withstand future difficulties and to teach them the inside of a soldiers' life that they may contemplate life and army conditions from the standpoint of the private. Medical officers must know the duties of the line as well as those pertaining strictly to the medical department. The failure of the medical department in the Spansh war was partially due to the ineffective administration of the medical branch, caused by lack of training of medical officers who [illegible] directly from civilian practice to the army.

Civilians [illegible]ss.

How helpless a civilian physician is in military environment can not be appreciated by a lay mind, and the resultant lack of understanding between line officers, who possessed the authority, and medical officers who acted only in advisory capacity was the direct cause of the great mortality from disease which existed during the Spanish war.

Line officers appreciate the importance of sanitation in maintaining the efficiency of their command and the result is a better status of the medical officers' advices.

To Make Efficient.

It is to make the medical department efficient, in short, to make the doctors over into soldiers, that the army has created the medical training camps. Besides the training of medical officers, privates enlisted in hospital and ambulance companies are under instruction, both in field and trench first aid. A complete system of trenches with dugouts for dressing stations have been constructed and companies completing their courses here are ready for service at the front.

The Daily Program.

The daily program for the men who used to be doctors begins at 5:15 a. m., when they roll out. Considering that most doctors are late sleepers the agility with which they salute the rising sun is remarkable. Of course the expletives that accompany the rise are many and varied, leave it to the doctors, but they get out for reveille. Despite the discomforts, the men subserve their selfish and self-centered interests to the interest of the company and the service, and all the vociferous complaints are good natured and not malicious. The hardest work is done on the hike. When all companies are walked and run at double time over the Kansas hills. A doctor from Mississippi describes the hike as well as any one can. He says, "They walk us till our tongues hang out and run us till we drop."

No War Talk.

There is very little discussion of the war heard around camp, everybody is busy with drill, class work and sleep. Every state is represented, and in the ranks are included eminent specialists and college professors. Everyone has felt it his duty to respond and it is very significant to note the preponderance of married men, rather advanced in years, only ten per cent of the men in our company are single.

Diversion is found in the neighboring cities of Junction City and Manhattan, both cities reminding one of Bismarck very much. Here are vaudeville theaters which are generously patronized by the soldiers. A feature which Bismarck might well consider is the public open air swimming pool. Each town has a large, clean pool open to the public for a nominal fee of fifteen cents for towels and suits. The men enjoy these advantages immensely.

All Conduct Services.

All denominations conduct services in camp every Sunday, and the Y. M. C. A. is well represented in every camp doing a wonderful work for the boys who certainly need these influences. Remember the soldier whenever you can. his lot is hard and he appreciates home remembrances, for everything is not rosy in a military camp. Send your periodicals forward and when the army goes don't forget to boost and be with them in spirit, because they need encouragement in the big task ahead.

BIGGEST JOB OF ALL, SAYS DAKOTA CLERIC OF WAR Y ACTIVITY

Tumbled Into Work Because He Couldn't Enlist; Finds It Big Man-Sized Task

Marmarth, N. D., Sept. 20.—Rev. N. B. Dexter, former popular Marmarth minister, writes from Great Lakes, Ill. that he is happily engaged in war Y. M. C. A. work there, and that he has among his boys many recruits from Flasher, Leeds, Bowman, Belfield and other North Dakota towns. "I was rejected from army service because my eyes failed to pass muster," writes Rev. Dexter to Marmarth friends. "I got into this as the next best thing. Now that I am in it I can see that perhaps I stumbled upon the biggest job of all. I know it is a man-size job, and worth while in a big way."

DEADLY DUST BOMB ADDS TERRORS TO TRAGEDY TO FARM

New England, N. D., Sept. 20.—The deadly dust bomb has added its terrors to the tragedy of life down on the farm. Christ Strommen of New England is the first victim. He came very near losing his separator when one of these infernal machines went off inside the contrivance and set it ablaze. A prompt application of water was the only thing that saved the day. Strommen was on top the elevator when the explosion occurred, and he narrowly escaped injury. A remedy for "dust bombs" is said to be to wire the machines and ground the wires in the same method adopted with lightning rods. This is the advice of the secretary of the New England Commercial club.

FRENCH VICTORS CELEBRATE IN GERMANY!

The tri-color flew gaily to the breeze in the Alsatian town of Massevairn on the third anniversary of the French reoccupation of this town, which has been under the Prussian heel since 1870. Note the Alsatian girls in their picturesque native dress, and the French poilus walking down the village street confident that this part of France's former glory has been rewon to the tri-color forever.

BABCOCK SEES GREAT FUTURE FOR OUR COAL

Believes Fuel Famine Will Result in General Introduction of Lignite in State

LAUGHABLE IGNORANCE OF VALUABLE RESOURCE

That the probability of the eastern section of North Dakota will be unable to procure enough hard coal and eastern bituminous to supply its winter needs will result n several times doubling the consumption of native lignite is the opinion of Dr. E. J. Babcock, dean of the North Dakota college of mines ,and chairman of the national defense council committee on fuel, who is here attending a meeting of the executive committee.

Dean Babcock is one of the nation's most respected authorities on lignite. He can make it sit up and play a tune when it will not even roll over for one less gifted. He has reported now proving a 43 percent increase in lignite consumption over August, 1916, and he believes that before real cold weather sets in every home in the valley will have a little lignite in the house.

They Want to Know.

"The attitude of some of our eastern North Dakota people toward lignite is really laughable," said Dean Babcock today. "I receive letters almost every day asking: 'What is lignite?' 'Will it burn?' 'Can I use it in my furnace?' 'Will if explode?' 'How do you lite the stuff?' Do you feed it with a spoon or with a bottle?'"

Lignite is officially recognized by the United States geological survey as a bituminous coal in process of formation, about forty percent as efficient as the higher grade soft coals. Seven hundred billion tons of it underly central and western North Dakota. There is hardly a township, and in many sections very few farms, without a mine. The farmer who has an outcropping of lignite, strips the surface and mines it for his own use and permits his neighbors to come in and dig their supply, at as little as a dollar for a load.

Some Big Mines.

The largest mine in the state, located at Wilton, employs 200 men and produces a quarter-million tons annually.—This production will be doubled this year through the opening of a second shaft and building of a new shaft house. There are large mines at Dickinson, Hebron, New Salem, in the Minot vicinity, at Noonan, Lignite and in many other sections of the state, and their production is growing rapidly.

Dean Babcock believes that once eastern coal-users become familiar with lignite, they will burn it to the exclusion of the much more expensive eastern coals. Three tons of lignite cost no more than one to not anthracite. They do entail more shoveling more looking after the furnace, and a large fire-box. That is where the rub comes, and it is the only count that ever has been made to stand against lignite.

PIONEERS TELL HOW MINNESOTA MADE FINE FARM LAND A SWAMP

Interesting Testimony Given at St. Paul by Old Settlers From Richland

Pioneers who settled in the Red River valley from 1861 to 1899, and who have resided there continuously from 29 to 37 years, testified in North Dakota's drainage suit against the state of Minnesota before a master in chancery at St. Paul last week to the effect that the section of Richland county which has been under water for the last three years had up to 1915 been one of the finest farming regions in the northwest, reported First Assistant Attorney General A. Bronson today. Mr. Bronson ,who is representing the state in this important litigation, came to Bismarck last night, and leaves again this evening for St. Paul, where the taking of expert testimony probably will continue throughout the week.

Old settlers, he advised, testified that splendid farms have been transformed into swamps and morasses through Minnesota's practice of dumping its flood waters into the Red river, and that beautiful farm buildings whose owners have spent small fortunes and many years of care in developing into comfortable country homes, are completely surrounded by water.

North Dakota claims that the farmers of Richland county, in loss of crops alone, have been damaged to the extent of at least $2,000,000. Minnesota is defending a similar suit in which South Dakota is the plaintiff. A federal master in chancery is taking evidence.

FORMER SOCIALIST GUBERNATORIAL CAND UNDER INDICTMENT

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 20.—J. H. TERRIBLE TURK TAKES TUMBLE; HEAD BROKEN IN FALL IN ELEVATOR

Beach, N. D., Sept. 20.—While stealing a ride in the man-life of the Russell-Miller elevator here, Mahmut Hasson, a 225-pound Turk, ignorant of the fact that the endless belt which is used for this purpose kept right on going after it reached the top, was hurled head-first to the concrete floor some distance below, fracturing his skull, and sustaining injuries which it is feared will prove fatal. Hasson had been employed as a section hand by the Northern Pacific, and he has been removed to the company's hospital at Glendive.

Fiery Eczema and Skin Eruptions Readily Yield to This Old Remedy

Sucessfully used for fifty years.

Eczema and similar skin troubles come from a disordered, impure condition of the blood, and they can only be cured by giving the blood a thorough cleansing, and removing from it all traces of impurity.

This is why S. S. S. has been used so successfully in hnadreds of cases of Eczema and other skin eruptions.

This wonderful remedy is without an equal as a blood purifier, being probably the oldest blood medicine on the market. It has been sold by druggists for fifty years.

FERGUS FALLS SUSPECTS HELD AS MURDERERS

Positively Identified by Four Witnesses of Daring Hold-Up in Moorhead

CAN'T BE THE SLAYERS.

Moorhead, Minn., Sept. 20.—George Smith and W. T. Murphy, the two men arrested yesterday in Fergus Falls, Minn., as suspects in the murder case, will be held on a charge of "resisting arrest," although police officials here admit that it is not probable that they could be the men who committed the crime.

According to police, the men, who were arrested shortly after they alighted from the train, could not have committed the murder and arrive in Fergus Falls when they did, as the train on which they were riding left Moorhead thirty minutes before the murder was committed.

Moorhead, Minn., Sept. 20—Two men arrested at Fergus Falls yesterday were positively identified as the bandits who murdered George Sheffield and robbed four men and the cash box at the Great Northern depot in Moorhead Wednesday morning, the identifications being made by the four men who witnessed the hold-up and murder.

These men are R. E. Leiser, operator; M. H Rhea, baggage master, and two passengers who were waiting in the depot at the time and were forced to hand over their money at the point of a gun. They are: Martin Lybeck of Dallas Wis., and Oscar Pangan of Eau Claire, Wis.

"I am satisfied that the men who gives his name as George Smith is the man who murdered George Sheffield," said Leiser last night over the telephone.

"I am certain that the shorter of the two men, W. T. Murphy, is the same man that held myself and two passengers up in the waiting room while his companion was killing Sheffield," said Baggage Master Rhea.

"The two passengers who were robbed are just as decided in their identifications," said Chief of Police Allen H Johnson, of Fergus Falls. "I am sure that we have got the men"

CAPITAL CITY ASKED TO TURN OUT FOR DANCE

Women's Auxiliary Gives Everyone in Bismarck Opportunity to Meet Defenders

MILITARY MEN AND WIVES WILL RECEIVE

Twin Functions at Armory and Masonic Temple Tomorrow Night to Be Unique

Every red-blooded man and woman in Bismarck is not only cordially invited, but strongly urged, to turn out tomorrow evening and become acquainted with the brave boys who soon will leave for the front to defend the honor of their city The twin events to be held at the Masonic temple and the armory under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary promise to be notable in many respects, and it is desired to make them particularly so through a democratic commingly of civilians and military men.

While many members of the Bismarck units—Co. A of the First and Co I and headquarters company of the Second—are Bismarck men, many more come from Slope towns surrounding the capital city. They have had little opportunity to meet Bismarck people Tomorrow evening they are to be given a chance to get acquainted, and the ladies hope that everyone will turn out, attend the receptions and meet the boys, in order that they may feel a closer, deeper, more personal interest in their future.

Two Receiving Lines.

There will be two receiving lines, formed at the Masonic temple by Col Frank White and Lieut Col. T. H. Thralson of the Second, Major F. S. Henry and Major C. E. Hunt of the First, and Capt. H. T. Murphy, regimental adjutant of the Second At the armory, General Frazier and Major Dana Wright and Captain J W. Murphy of the First, Captain A. B. Welch and Capt. John W. Rock will receive. The military men will be assisted by their staffs and their ladies.

It is especially requested that guests present themselves promptly at 9 tomorrow evening, and that they circulate freely and continually between the Masonic temple and the armory, in order that they may meet all of the soldier boys. The two Bismarck letter companies are recruited up to full strength, numbering 300 men, and the headquarters company has between 50 and 60 men, including the band They are good soldiers and gentlemen whom the citizens of Bismarck, the Woman's Auxiliary feels, will feel it an honor to know. Excellent music for dancing will be furnished at both places, O'Connor's orchestra and the Second regiment band having been retained for the occasion.

Committee of Women.

A strong committee, composed of members of the auxiliary, prominent matrons and a bevy of the younger women, will have charge of the refreshments which will be served at the Masonic temple The complete list follows: Mrs. Peter Reid, Mrs. C. H. Olson, Miss Leila Diesem and Mrs. N G. Nelson in charge, assisted in the dining room by Mrs J. A Flow, Mrs Yodmans, Mrs. Agnes McKechnie, Mrs. S. E. Dugan, Mrs. Edward Bannon, Mrs. J. McGillis, Mrs. E. G. Wanner, Mrs. A E. Preston, Mrs. F. R. Smyth, Mrs. A. M. Packard, Mrs Carrie B. Barr, Mrs. N. L. Call, Mrs. M. C. Budiong, Mrs. Marshall H. Jewell, Mrs George L. Price, Mrs. W E. Parsons, the Misses Hilma Anderson, Glenda Anderson, Emma Brandt, Margaret Brown, Emma McGarvey, Adelaine Bork, Wallie Dirlam, Elizabeth Bayliss, Cala Peters, Harriette Falconer, Helen Sullivan, Grace Tomlinson, Alice Knott, Mary Kelly and Tess Henry.

EAGLE EYES ENDORSE TRAVELERS FOR STAND AGAINST DISLOYALISTS

Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers at Grand Forks Approve Minot Action

Grand Forks N D, Sept. 20.—A resolution endorsing the action of the Minot U C T council in calling upon Governor Frazier to prevent meetings of an unpatriotic nature in the state and asking Senator Gronna to resign, was passed at a meeting Sunday afternoon of the Brotherhood of Engineers, division 69. The resolution thus endorsed is as follows:

"Whereas, the members of the B. L. E. are loyal to their government in the conduct of this war; and

"Whereas, it is necessary that every citizen of the country, as well as every organization and industry, give his undivided support to the government; and

"Whereas, there are agencies at work in North Dakota with a view to hampering the government in its prosecution of the war; be it

"Resolved by the members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, division 69, that we endorse the action of the United Commercial Travelers of America, Minot Council No 277, in calling upon Governor Frazier to withdraw his order to police officials anent the Industrial Workers of the World, and to prevent any meetings in the state of the People's Peace Council or other unpatriotic and un-American organization; and, be it further

"Resolved, that we endorse the same council's action in calling upon Sen. A J Gronna to resign his seat in the senate because of his unpatriotic utterances and actions."

BRITISH FORCE CLOSING IN ON CROWN PRINCE

which they have advanced in this sector they have accomplished one of the most remarkable achievements in months.

Today's offensive will be known as the battle of the Mennin Road. Fair weather has improved the ground, but the mud still was deep and the whole territory covered with water filled shell holes, tangled barbed wire and shattered trees The German defensives were composed largely of concrete redoubts.

Woods Choked with Guns.

The Germans poured a wicked stream of bullets into the ranks of the advancing troops from concrete redoubts. Every little elevation and all the woods were choked full of rapid fire guns.

The British encountered hard fighting at many places, but their magnificent artillery work had done much to make the first stage of their drive easier.

The British barrage swept the country like a broom. The Germans knew the attack was coming, but were unaware of its exact locality There was a light rain last night, but the weather cleared this morning, and visibility is improving

London, Sept. 20.—The British forces on the Belgium front attacked the German positions this morning east of Ypres Field Marshal Haig reports that satisfactory progress was made and that the British already have captured some valuable positions.

To Force Rupprecht.

Field Marshal Haig's selection of the battle front east of Ypres in Belgium as the scene of his latest offensive, indicates it is a continuation of the expressed purpose of the British commander to force the armies of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria from the western coast of Belgium and to cut off German submarine and airplane bases on the North sea from Zeebrugge to Nieuport, including Ostend.

The British drive apparently is being made toward Roulers and Courtrai, from which towns, according to recent reports, German military authorities have been evacuating the Belgian civil population.

That the British offensive has been in preparation for several days was made known in recent statements of the German army headquarters staff.

MORE ARTILLERY ACTIVITY.

Canadian Headquarters in France (by the Canadian Press, Est.), Sept 20—Artillery activity has been greater today, aided by brilliant sunshine, than for several days The tendency of the enemy to devote more attention to shelling our back areas with long range high velocity guns increases, as does the use of gas shells in sections where noncombatants live The object apparently is to terrorize mine workers and their families and make more difficult the work of raising coal

CANDIDATES FOR CROSS.

American Headquarters in France, Sept. 19 (By the Associated Press.)—Brigadier General George B Duncan and Major Campbell King are the first American officers to receive the war cross in the French awards growing out of American participation in the recent Verdun offensive, when they acted as observation officers in the forward artillery posts Whether the officers will be permitted to accept the decoration is not known

TROOPS MOVE SMOOTHLY ON WAY TO CAMP

Last Contingent of North Dakota's First Forty Per Cent to Leave Sunday

JOURNEY THROUGH STATE ONE CONTINUED OVATION

The entraining of 1,966 men for Camp Dodge, which began yesterday morning, is continuing without a hitch, according to reports reaching the office of the district board and the adjutant general, and by Sunday night every man included in this forty per cent draft will be on his way to Des Moines Special trains were provided for the troops on the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Soo lines, and their journey through the state was one long ovation, in which patriotic towns vied with one another in showing their appreciation for the select service men's patriotism The first contingents begin arriving at Camp Dodge this evening, and all will be in camp by Monday morning, the Cass county contingent leavng Sunday, being the last to go The draft has taken from North Dakota an unusually high class of candidates for Uncle Sam's national army, in the opinion of the district board and the local boards who have come in direct contact with the registrants A splendid spirit prevailed everywhere, and there was not the least hint of disorder or attempt at interference In many instances alternates who were ready to go were substituted for principals anxious to complete harvesting, and who will go in the next draft

Towner Boys Feted.

McHenry, N D, Sept 20—A picnic on the court house lawn was held yesterday in honor of Towner county's delegation which left during the afternoon for Camp Dodge Families drove in from miles around, bringing well-filled baskets, and the boys had a real feed which they long will remember

Farewell at Steele.

Steele, N D, Sept 20—A concert by the Second regiment band, a big dinner served by the ladies of the Red Cross, and a program of patriotic addresses and music were features of the farewell reception tendered Kidder county's drafted men prior to their departure yesterday afternoon A special Northern Pacific train, made up of five coaches, all well filled by the time the Kidder county boys had gone aboard, carried the select service soldiers to Minneapolis on the first stage of their journey

RAPID CITY FAIR

Rapid City, S D, Sept 20—Rapid City's First annual alfalfa palace fair, which opened Monday, is proving the greatest exposition of agricultural, mineral and domestic resources ever offered west of the river, its management claims A mammoth building has been erected, and every available foot of space is filled with interesting displays. The structure seats 1,000 people

MERCHANTS TO HAVE LESSONS IN ECONOMIES

Committe of National Defense Council Will Teach Business Men How to Save

A commercial economy committee whose aim will be to teach merchants to reduce waste in merchandising was an outcome of the meeting of the executive board of the North Dakota national defense council held here on Tuesday This committee will show the merchants where they may cut the expense of delivering through union delivery service and fewer daily deliveries, where they can reduce the cost of merchandise by uniting in the purchase of carload lots, and how in other ways they may do their share to cut the high cost of living The committee is not yet complete, and its personnel will be announced later—The Bismarck Tribune, Sept 19, 1917

"Merchants to Have Lessons in Economies"

Yesterday's Tribune bore the above heading and then went on to say that "A Commercial Economy Committee" of the National Defense Committee would give lessons in reducing waste on the delivery system now in vogue.

Will it is time something was done to reduce this tremendous "waste." The delivery system is costing the people more than rents and is the greatest single item in expense in the "high cost of living" and should be reduced.

But some one else besides the merchants needs waking p on this fearfully extravagant loss—and much of it is absolutely unnecessary The buyer is the one way to teach next after the dealer.

Some merchants claim two-thirds of their overhead expense is due to delivery and fortunate, indeed, is the store that can reduce it to one-third of the overhead expense,

We are ready for "lessons" as we have been having lessons for years on this subject.

The committee advocates buying in car lead lots. The merchants of Bismarck are doing this now and we are preparing to do much of our bying in car lots soon. We will interest a number of new stockholders in this enterprise and set aside reasonable capital for that express purpose.

We can reduce costs this way and save the buyer money by reducing prices.

If we can reduce the cost of delivery, sell for cash and buy in car load lots we can reduce the price of goods at least ten per cent to the consumer.

EQUAL RIGHTS, EQUAL DUTIES.

For many years this country has kept its doors open to the oppressed of all nations. We have invited them to "the land of the free and the home of the brave." We have told them that here was freedom of speech and of the press. We have insisted that here MEN must have their RIGHTS.

We have fought for these, have put them in party platforms and have demanded them in the courts. We were ready to fight even the courts when they interfered.

Now we face a crisis. We are in a world war. We find that we must make a STAND for the RIGHTS we have been talking about.

We find the rights of man are not local or merely national, but universal. We find that to protect the RIGHTS of Americans as men, we must protect the rights of other men all over the world.

And that means that we have come to a point where we must consider DUTIES as well as RIGHTS.

One of those duties is the duty of every man to make the necessary individual sacrifice to preserve those RIGHTS.

To gain those rights many of our ancestors gave their lives in the revolutionary war. To preserve those rights many of them gave their lives in the war of the rebellion.

And now we find that to hold those rights we must make whatever sacrifice is necessary to gain the same rights for our brothers all over the world.

The preservation of these rights involves responsibility. It involves duty. And it is not the duty of a few of us, but the duty of ALL of us.

It is the duty not alone of those born in this country but also of all who came to this country to enjoy the blessings of Liberty.

Freedom of speech and of the press does not mean that either native-born citizens or aliens have the right to lend aid and comfort to the enemy by trying to prevent us from preserving those rights. Their DUTY is as great as ours.

Equal RIGHTS mean equal DUTIES.

No man who lives in the United States has any RIGHT which absolves him from the DUTY of making whatever sacrifice either of blood or treasure is necessary to preserve that RIGHT.

Those who boast of RIGHTS must do their DUTY. And that goes for every man's DOLLARS as well as his blood.

In a city not a great distance from Bismarck dwells a German who frequently, both before and since America's entrance into the war, has compared conditions in the two countries to the disadvantage of America. This gentleman advises his friends that when the war is over he intends to return to Germany. He has a little son. He wouldn't think he says, of raising that boy in America. Uncle Sam ought to consult with this anxious parent and see to it that his early return to the fatherland, which he loves so well, is facilitated. Probably the fatherland would like to have him now—it needs all the man-power it [illegible]

HOW ABOUT DAD?

By Berton Braley.

[illegible]

The mother has had the past, the father goes up the future.

[illegible]

And now we see the time [illegible] without belittling the beauty and holiness of the mother's sacrifice, I mean this good word for the unsung, unseen sacrifice of "Dad."

Americans of German parentage in the Hope are in the most loyal, patriotic citizens. In the special train which yesterday carried the first large contingent of North Dakota's quota to Camp Dodge, Teutonic features were common. These boys and their fathers, by their patriotism and loyalty, are doing much to redeem in the eyes of America a race which Kaiser Wilhelm and some of his blind followers in this country as well as at home seem intent upon destroying utterly.

France decrees skirts are to be narrower as well as shorter this fall. Well, if they make 'em short enough they can cut them as narrow as they please and women will still be able to walk.

We'll soon be exchanging our dry fishing for good old buckwheat scratching. There's always something to maintain interest in life.

The Mormons come reports from Utah are making good fighters. Well, why not? Many a man with only one wife develops a good fighting-front.

A Columbus hotel can fall to stories. No, not in the least. You ought to know without asking.

WITH THE EDITORS

"CONSCRIPTING WEALTH."

(Chicago Tribune.)

There is a cult which has for its catch phrase "the conscription of wealth." That phrase is being repeated over and over in congress. It is developed in this fashion. "We are conscripting our sons and our husbands, why shouldn't we conscript our accumulated resources?"

This formula is brought forward to justify the most excessive taxation. It is the favorite exclamation of the half baked and the loose minded. A superficial intelligence regards it as the ultimate expression of war economy.

Such a mental attitude ignores the fact that the money is here, that it cannot escape. It deliberately overlooks the obvious truth that a supreme ordeal will inevitably exact the necessities of the occasion. The contrary could be true only in the case of the complete breakdown of government.

There is no question that excessive taxation tends to the breakdown of government. The French revolution is a good example. We do not believe that a revolution is possible in this country, but it is just as well to understand the implications of oppressive taxation.

There could be no argument about the matter if taxation were the only means of obtaining war funds. A reasonable amount of taxation is, of course, necessary. But there are plenty of specialists in political economy who could devise a wiser and safer program than the one congress seems to be on the verge of imposing on the country. [illegible]

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Robert Hollis, one time sea captain, who tells the story, is a guest on Gerald Carrington's yacht, Esmeralda. It is supposed to be a "stag" party and Hollis is surprised on encountering a woman who evidently wishes to remain unknown, aboard.

CHAPTER II—Hollis, the next night, succeeds in having an interview with the woman.

CHAPTER III—Carring[illegible] his guests of the coming war, and that he is engineering a copper pool.

CHAPTER IV—The yacht is sunk in a collision and Hollis saves McCann, millionaire, and one of the party.

CHAPTER V—Hollis and McCann rescue Vera and leave the ship in a small boat.

CHAPTER VI—Hollis and Vera become friendly, though he is unaware of her identity.

CHAPTER VII—McCann refuses to submit to Hollis' authority, and the [illegible] enforces it.

CHAPTER VIII—The castaways are [illegible] by a ship, the Indian Chief, which takes them aboard.

CHAPTER IX—The Indian Chief has recently been struck by lightning and is almost a wreck. All the officers are dead. Hollis meets the owner, who tells him the vessel has a cargo of ammunition, consigned to the German government.

CHAPTER X—Hollis consents to take charge of ship and continue voyage. Vera recognizes an old friend in Robert Bascom, owner of the Indian Chief.

CHAPTER XI—Some dissatisfaction among the crew quickly develops, and Hollis selects his officers.

CHAPTER XII—McCann wants to return to New York, and tries to corrupt the crew.

CHAPTER XIII—Hollis finds himself forced to confine McCann to a cabin.

CHAPTER XIV—Vera and Hollis agree that for Bascom's sake the ship must be taken to its destination. Hollis learns that Vera is Gerald Carrington's daughter.

CHAPTER XV—The crew, realizing danger of capture by allied warships, evince disinclination to continue the voyage.

CHAPTER XVI—Leaders of the crew disarm Hollis and make him a prisoner.

CHAPTER XVII—In a fight with the mutineers Hollis is badly hurt. On recovering consciousness he realizes that he must submit, though, being the only navigator on board, he is in position to make terms with McCann. He is made a prisoner.

CHAPTER XVIII—Vera pretends to agree to McCann's plans, to Hollis' wonder.

CHAPTER XIX—Hollis escapes from confinement and reaches the deck to find the Indian Chief has been stopped by a French warship.

CHAPTER XX—McCann succeeds in deceiving commander of warship which passes on its way. Hollis is recaptured.

CHAPTER XXI—Vera and Hollis reach understanding by which they will outwit McCann.

CHAPTER XXII—Vera acknowledges her love for Hollis. McCann, Hollis, "Liverpool Red" and the leaders of the mutiny have a conference.

CHAPTER XXIII—Hollis realizes that McCann and his followers are preparing to abandon the ship.

CHAPTER XXIV—Vera releases him, who had been confined by McCann.

CHAPTER XXV—McCann seeks to compel Vera to go with him in the small boat, but the girl is rescued by Hollis. McCann and his followers escape.

CHAPTER XXVI—Hollis and the few men who remained loyal successfully navigate the ship through a storm. They overtake the vessel's boats, in extreme peril.

CHAPTER XXVII—McCann and his followers, after agreeing to recognize Hollis' authority, are allowed the freedom of the ship. Dubois, a sailor, is found murdered, stabbed from behind.

CHAPTER XXVIII—Efforts to ascertain who was the slayer of Dubois result in the conviction that there is a maniac aboard. Another man is found dead, and all realize Bascom, who cannot be found, is the murderer.

CHAPTER XXIX—While searching for Bascom it is discovered that the ship is on fire.

CHAPTER XXX.

A Day in the Boat.

I turned, my fingers yet gripping the rail. Before then I had had no time to think, to appreciate the full terror of our situation, to realize the horror of the spectacle. In that last instant this burst upon me in all its vivid horror. Between the two hatches the deck was a sheet of flames; already the canvas of the lower yards had caught, and was blazing fiercely. The red writhing serpents, fanned by the wind, were sweeping aft in billows, tipped with black smoke, dense and suffocating. All about us the glare of dancing fire, the swirl of shadowy smoke clouds; the air was hot, almost blistering. I saw nothing of McCann.

"He isn't in the boat?"

"No, sir."

"Well, we can't wait—lower away—yes, I'm coming."

They must have unhooked the falls at my first word, for the boat sunk just as I swung to the rail. This, and a sight suddenly revealed against the front of the cabin, held me there, clinging to a stay, struck motionless with horror. I heard Vera cry out from below:

"Robert—Robert! Don't wait—jump!"

But the words seemed to have no meaning, no power to impress me; for an instant the sight I beheld paralyzed my brain. The lashed wheel still held the ship to the wind, and the clouds of smoke belched aft, becoming so dense I could not see across the deck to the port rail. I know not where they came from, nor how they had met in that last death grapple. All I know is, that suddenly both bodies wrapped in flame, and half shrouded in wreaths of smoke, the glare of fire on their faces, every muscle straining in the intensity of struggle—McCann fighting desperately to escape; Bascom exercising all the mad strength of insanity to retain hold of his victim. If either uttered a sound I heard it not. It was like a horrid picture projected from out the smoke cloud, and as instantly fading. I saw the men's faces, exultant hatred in one, unspeakable terror in the other; I witnessed the strain of muscle, the awful effort to rend apart arms and limbs. It was a vision of hell, yet almost before I could [illegible] vision it, the two [illegible] in a sea of flame; where they went—into the seething caldron, or over the rail into the depths of ocean—I can never tell. They were there, struggling like fiends, a horror unspeakable in a frame of smoke and fire; then that curtain of death and fire dropped—and they were no more.

I may have jumped; I may have released my hold upon the backstay, and fallen. The deck planks were hot to my feet and serpents of flame crept along the seams as though reaching for me with tongues of fire. I staggered back with hands held before my eyes, half blinded with the glare, still seeing in crazed memory that awful spectacle of death and horror. From far below a cry reached my ears—a woman's agonized cry shrieking upward through the crackle and roar of flames until it even penetrated my brain, and brought me life again:

"Robert! Robert! Come to me!"

I turned, and gripped the rail. With one swing I was over it, my body hurtling through the air, down into the black sea. As I came back to the surface, every numbed faculty restored by the plunge, the icy grip of the water, the glow of the flames above me revealed the small boat. Dashing the moisture from my eyes, conscious only of the pleading in her extended arms, I swam toward it. Then behind me the ship burst into a thousand fragments, rending apart with the report of a mighty gun, and shooting upward in a volcano of flame. I went down—down—down, and knew no more.

With One Swing I Was Over It.

If one could be in an instant transferred from the most fantastic depths of an inferno to the heavenly delights of paradise, his experience would not seem stranger, or more impossible than mine. I had sunk to death amid the every horror of noise and sight; the black night, the glare of flame, the roar of explosion, the icy clutch of water; what followed that plunge into the depths was unconsciousness. I awoke with Vera's eyes smiling into mine, her face bent above me, the golden sunlight of a new dawn resting on her hair. I could but stare up at her, unable to comprehend, half believing it all a vision to as quickly dissolve into mist. Yet I was rational, my brain swiftly clearing to the truth. The hand which held mine was of flesh and blood; those were no dream eyes smiling their welcome, and I was lying in a boat, bobbing up and down on the surface of the sea. Words came to my lips, a whispered question:

"You—you picked me up? we are

"Yes, dear; oh! I am so glad! Lie still, you are not strong enough to sit up yet."

"Oh, yes I am, see, I will lean against your shoulder. Why, it is actually morning; the sun is an hour high."

My eyes left her face to survey the others, and the cockleshell in which we floated. The little boat bore up bravely under its load, although White and Olsen were both bailing, and my eyes took note of several charred spots along the gunwale showing the touch of fire. Leayord was at the tiller, and seemed to comprehend all that I was most eager to learn.

"Yes, we're still afloat, sir," he said with a sailor's hopefulness. "But it's God's mercy. By every token we should have been blown out of the water when the Indian Chief exploded, but somehow the gust of it didn't hit us. We was showered with fire, an' hit by a lot of flyin' stuff, but nuthin' to wreck the boat. White had his arm broke by a piece o' timber, an' an oar went overboard. But how we ever kept right side up in this little dinky boat when that big iron pot sunk is more'n anybody but God could tell. We just couldn't do nuthin' but just hang on. We was way up there, sir, a scrapin' the clouds, an' then down in a hollow that seemed a mile deep; an' when we come up out o' that, there you was, sir, shootin' out o' the waves straight at us. The girl, she saw you an' screamed; she'd have gone over after yer, if I hadn't grabbed her, an' then Red he got a boat hook inter the collar of yer jacket, an' we hauled yer in over the side."

"That must have been hours ago."

"Quite a spell, sir. Something hit yer head, an' it bled a bit. The young lady has been a-holdin' yer on her lap ever since; she tore her skirt—"

"Never mind that, Mr. Leayord," she interrupted. "We all of us did what we could. Olsen, will you pass back a biscuit and a water bottle; Captain Hollis will regain strength if he has something to eat."

I smiled at her, and accepted the biscuit.

"How are we fixed on food? I only want my share."

"We have had one apiece; there were two bags thrown in; we can thank McCann for that, the poor devil."

The memory of that spectacle of horror witnessed on the blazing deck came suddenly back to me, and I hid my eyes, every muscle of my weakened body trembling. I felt Vera's arms hold me tight.

"What is it, Robert? You are in pain?"

"No; the suffering was mental, not physical. I—I saw McCann's death; that was what held me on board so long. Bascom got him; they—they went down together, fighting in each other's arms, in a sheet of flame. No words can picture the horror of it. Let's not talk of that any longer. I—I must keep my mind."

"Yes, dear, we will not talk of it," tenderly. "Our own situation is surely bad enough; you must tell the men what to do."

I lifted myself, strengthened by the appeal, eager to be diverted.

"The boat is taking in water?"

"Not a great deal, sir; she is so deep loaded some splashes over the gunwale. We're all right so long as the sea keeps like it is now."

"Are you steering by compass?"

"No, sir, by sun. I just naturally headed west; that's the nearest coast, I reckon? Are these fishing seas, sir?"

"The best in the world. I've often read of dory crews being lost in the winter fog, and yet making land in spite of the storm and cold. If they can do it in such weather, there is no call for us to give up while the boat floats. The first job should be to rig a sail; there is one oar left?"

"Aye, sir, and a paddle."

"Good enough. Red, cut a hole in that forward thwart with your sheath knife; not too large now. Any canvas aboard?"

"Only these strips."

"They'll do for stays, and to make secure. The sail will have to be a shirt—Olson, how about yours?"

He peeled it off without a word, and helped me fasten it to the oar blade. It was a rough bit of work, yet served the purpose, and when we had stepped the improvised mast, bracing it as best we could with the paddle, and the outspread garment bellied out in the fairly fresh wind, the sight put new heart into all of us. I could but note the fellows staring at it, and then at the rushing green water alongside, as though calculating our progress. No doubt it was small enough, yet the very knowledge that we were moving at all tended to bolster our courage and arouse hope.

There was nothing more to be done; the boat rode fairly steady, and one man could easily keep her clear of water. The others disposed themselves as best they might, occasionally exchanging a word or two, but mostly staring about at the expanse of sea. Leayord hung on to the tiller, while I held to Vera's hand, and we spoke in low voices for each other alone.

"What a mistake we made when we chose this voyage," I said regretfully. "It has brought only hardship and peril."

"I do not regret," and her eyes gazed frankly into mine. "Truly I do not. There was no other way for us to know and love. Robert, if this was the end, I should be glad of my choice. I would rather go down here in these waters clasped in your arms, than to be compelled to live on in the world without you."

"My sweetheart; but I will not imagine such a fate. We have struggled on through too much to have the end come in this desolate ocean. We must win—the Newfoundland coast is not so far away, and these are sailors with us. You trust, and love me?"

"With all my heart."

"Together we will have faith in God."

[illegible] hand softly stroked my [illegible] [illegible] shoulders shielding me from the sun; her sweet face bending over mine my own grew misty, and I finally lost consciousness even to her presence.

She told me later that I lay there motionless for two hours, so still, so softly breathing, as to almost frighten her. Twice she leaned close to assure herself that I did actually breathe, and her fingers felt for the beat of pulse at my wrist. It was the coma of sheer exhaustion. The bull-like roar of a startled voice forward awoke me. I caught no word, only the sound, but there was a note to it like the violence of a blow. I sat up, staring about, the entire scene within the range of vision photographing itself upon my brain. The ocean heaved in long green billows, crested with foam, the boat rising and falling as steadily as a rocking chair; the sun no longer beat down upon us from a cloudless sky, but appeared as a fiery red disk through a cloud of vapor, which swept along the surface of the water obscuring the circle of horizon. Liverpool stood erect in the boat's bow, holding himself firm by gripping the inverted oar, his free hand hollowed to make a trumpet of his voice. Every other face was turned forward, yet for an instant, the flapping shirts, improvised for sails, prevented my seeing the cause of excitement. Then Leayord, with an oath, jammed down his helm, and the dinghy swept to port, mounting a wave crest like a bird in flight, and there burst out directly ahead the sharp prow of a two-masted schooner, bearing straight down toward us, sailing before the wind.

"Ahoy there! Ahoy!" yelled Red and Olson, almost in one voice. "Port your helm! Curse you, port your helm!"

It was almost like a vision, that vessel—a grim, menacing specter, leaping straight on toward us out of the mist, the white foam circling from her sharp cut-water, her spars and ropes silhouetted against the gray fog, her main sheets reefed, but with topsails bellying to the sharp breeze, yet with not a sign of human life visible.

"Put your helm down, Leayord! Hard down, man." I sobbed. "She'll be into us in a minute! Ay! that's better; stand by, forward. If there is any chance lay hold."

QUEEN JUSTINE'S BEAUTY SECRET

Actress, at 19, Has Ruled Broadway Three Years Because She Is NATURAL

JUSTINE JOHNSTONE.

"Queen Justine" in real life and in the artist's dreams. Photograph of painter's portrait of reigning broadway beauty.

By J. HERBERT DUCKWORTH.

New York, Sept. 19—Queen of the Gay White Way for three years, and no sign of slipping!

Never in Broadway's glittering history has a beautiful girl caused such a fanatical furore or held the throne so long as has Justine Johnstone.

The despair of New York's gilded youth, the ideal of artists, the envy of the women of Fifth avenue, Miss Johnstone is the most talked of and most-toasted girl in "The Roaring Forties." She made her debut as a messenger boy in "Follies Bergere" three years ago, and is now, at 19, the "three year reigning beauty of Broadway."

What is the secret of this strange fascination Justine holds over men? Why is it that on the first opportunity Gen. Joffre and his party and Prince Udine and the Italian war commission made a bee line to Justine Johnstone's "Little Club," "a cabaret for the 400," an after theater gathering place in the cellar of the Forty-fourth street theater, to pay the fair hostess homage?

To get answers to these questions I sought an interview with Miss Johnstone. I found her in her Japanese lounge in her luxurious apartment on Central Park west. I discovered the explanations of her fame at once It is perfect physical beauty and NATURALNESS.

I have seen Miss Johnstone on the stage and at her club in elaborate toilettes. But today, in her simple muslin dress, she seemed prettier and more charming than ever.

"How do you account for your wonderful success?" I asked her.

"A girl with the necessary qualifications of youth and beauty never denied an engagement on Broadway," she answered, "and if she will only be natural she will be just as popular off as on the stage

"I have found the chorus of a good musical comedy as good a place for a girl to start a career as any I know of. You can learn more in a chorus than at any dramatic school.

"I have found in my work no time for dissipation, even if I were inclined to it. Anyway, the idea that the stage is an occupation for frivolous people, and that life behind the scenes is one long orgy, is silly.

"I have often wondered at my popularity, for there are many girls as pretty as I. Perhaps people like me both on the stage and at other times as well because I have tried to prove that one can be both good and happy at the same time."

Miss Johnstone is of Swedish parentage, and has the royal blood of the Bernadottes in her veins. The story of the little Swedish girl's success in New York has reached King Gustav, and her portrait, painted recently by Andreas Zorn during his visit to America, now hangs in the royal gallery in Stockholm.

Before she was known to the theater going public she was the most sought after artist's model in New York. Christy and Harrison Fisher nearly came to blows over her. Her face has smiled from the covers of half a dozen magazines at the same time

BISMARCK ENJOYS "PATSY"

June Caprice Stars in Charming Story of Love and Adventure

Bismarckers enjoyed one of the best film programs put on at the Auditorium for some time last evening, when June Caprice, the captivating young screen star played "Patsy." One of the big film hits of the season, it is a dainty tale of love and adventure and is given the proper interpretation by this vivacious young star

Patrons of the comedy should not miss the two reel feature, "His Love Fight," featuring Hank Wann, and shown as a preliminary to "Patsy." Hank's antics cannot help but make you laugh every minute during the showing of the two reels. The same program will be given this evening at

Soldiers to Gather Books For War Use

Mrs. E. G. Patterson, Chairman Burleigh County Library Council Issues Call

READING MATTER OF ALL KINDS WANTED

Bismarck citizens who have books, magazines or other reading material suitable for the soldier boys are requested to notify Mrs E. G. Patterson, chairman of the Burleigh county committee of the library war council, in order that plans may be made for the immediate collection of this literature by soldiers of Fort Lincoln, who have volunteered for this service under Major Dana Wright.

It is probable that the books and magazines will be assembled at the Commercial club rooms and prepared for shipment. In every Bismarck home, it is thought, there are some books and any number of magazines whose owners have no further use for them, but which will cheer the leisure hours of Sammies in training camp, cantonment and trench. All that will be necessary to get this reading material into the proper hands is to notify Mrs. Patterson, advising when it will be convenient to have the matter called for, and the soldier boys will do the rest.

Bismarck and Burleigh county have done their bit nobly in connection with the Liberty loan, Red Cross and other important movements, and Mrs Patterson is confident that in this present undertaking they will not be found lacking. The campaign is now on, and books and magazines should be sorted over at once, and available material suitable for the soldiers laid aside until Major Wright's men can call for it.

"THE SLACKER" OPENS TODAY AT ORPHEUM.

Emily Stevens has Powerful Support in Metro's "The Slacker."

"The Slacker," Metro's great special patriotic production de luxe, in which the gifted star, Emily Stevens, appears, has been given a cast of unusual distinction by its author-director William Christy Cabanne.

The part of "The Slacker" has been entrusted to that sterling actor, Walter Miller Mr Miller was associated with Mr Cabanne on the Pacific coast under the Griffith banner He has had valuable experience in both stage and screen work His motion picture experience has included feature productions with the Biograph, Fox and Universal companies

Leo Delaney has the important role of John Harding Mr Delaney is one of the most valuable players known to the screen world. Among his recent pictures are "Susie Snowflake," and "The Vital Question" Before going into the stock work which comprised his first stage experience, Mr. Delaney was a successful lawyer. He is a native of Vermont.

Eugene Borden, who plays the part of the sailor lad in "The Slacker," is also a graduate of stock work on the speaking stage. "Haunting Shadows," a World production, is one of his best-known pictures

Well known Metro favorites make up the larger part of the cast. Among these are Daniel Jarrett, Sue Balfour, Mrs. Mathilde Brundage, Baby Ivy Ward, Belle Bruce, and the ever-popular Chinese actor, Charles Fang Added to these is Millicent Fisher, a southern beauty, who has been termed "the girl with the screen face" Much is predicted for this recent recruit to the screen.

MINUTE MEN AND CLUB WOMEN SEE "SLACKER"

Four minute men and a committee of prominent club women of the city attended a private showing of "The Slacker" this morning at the Orpheum as guests of Manager Bauer This committee of critics was most profuse in their praise of this late war picture, which will be shown at the Orpheum for three days, beginning this afternoon.

At the request of the club women, Manager Bauer has offered to give a special matinee Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the Auditorium for the benefit of the school children of the grades The club women highly recommend it as a picture especially fitted for juveniles.

The play that makes patriots. "The Slacker," with wonderful Emily Stevens at the Orpheum tonight.

Working 24 Hours a Day.

A Chicago plumber has been arrested for leading a double life. By day he plied his trade, and by night he was a robber. We don't know much about the robber business, but we have had some experience with plumbers, so we arise to ask the question where his double life comes in.—Grit.

REPRESENTATIVES OF OLD SCOTCH FAMILY

THREE SPARKLING MAJOR LEAGUE STARS.

The good old family trees of the Smiths and the Joneses have been pretty well represented in baseball for a number of years. But neither the Smiths nor the Joneses have ever been able to claim the distinction of having three sprouts from their family trees in the major league spotlight at one time, such as the family Burns claims today.

Three major league stars who are in the midst of their baseball careers represent the old Scotch family. They are George J. Burns, Giant outfielder; Eddie Burns, Philly catcher, and George Burns, first baseman of the Detroit Tigers. Every one of this trio is a star, and unless the war claims one or all of them, or injuries interfere with their baseball activities the Burns trio will be good for some years to come in the big show.

Burns of New York.

George Burns of the Giants, has often been rated as the greatest all-around outfielder in the National league, and of the three he is perhaps the most valuable player. So far this year his fielding and throwing have been superb, and he is keeping in the race for batting honors. Hughie Jennings recently declared that of all the stars in the Giant constellation Burns stands out as the brightest, and this, coming from the famous Tiger manager, is some tribute.

Burns of Detroit.

First Baseman Burns of the Tigers is serving his fourth full season as a member of the Detroit Club. Although he is seldom ranked as an equal of Hal Chase in the art of cavorting around the initial station, he is a ball player any big league club would be glad to grab and he is only twenty-four years old.

Burns of Philadelphia.

Eddie Burns, catcher with the Phillies, is now in his fourth full season as a member of the Quakertown club, and although an injury early in the season kept him back, he is considered one of the most valuable players on Pat Moran's team. Eddie is a glutton for work, and if it wasn't for the fact that Moran has a star in Bill Killifer, Eddie would get all and perhaps more work than he could handle. The Philly backstop isn't as heavy a sticker as the other two representatives of the Burns family, but he makes up for it in every other way.

When Pole Meets Pole Detroit Loses Pole in Race for League Pennant

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 20.—Now the Detroit American league ball club knows that it means to get a dose of its own medicine.

Last year the Tigers gloried in the name Coveleskie. Their star left hander pitched wonderful ball—the wrecking crew hit savagely behind him and game after game went to Jennings' men because of this combination. But this season—

Coveleskie ruined the Tigers chance to finish one-two in the pennant race.

The reason is two-fold. There are two Coveleskies doing mound duty in the American league. One is Harry, the big Detroit veteran, the other his younger brother, Stanley, the right hand star of the Cleveland club. So the story of Detroit's downfall is short and pathetic—too much Stanley and not enough Harry.

The Elder Coveleskie hurt or overworked his arm last season.

This year he has been of little use to the Detroit club. His confidence deserted him. His curve ball, terror to many battsmen was missing. This combination of bad luck cost Detroit from 10 to 15 games and a glance at the percentage column will show what such a reserve meant, so far as the pennant is concerned.

And then Mr. Coveleskie's brother insisted upon making his presence felt. When he shut out Detroit on Sept. 17, he claimed his fifth victory in six attempts at the Tigers this season. On the only other occasion that he faced Jennings' warriors this year he was knocked out of the box, but the Cleveland pitcher who relieved him, saved the game.

The effectiveness of the young Coveleskie against the Tigers has been ramarkable. For 31 consecutive innings, including the game of Sept. 11, Coveleskie has blanked the Detroit club, and for 38 consecutive innings not an earned run has been made off his delivery.

Any way you view the situation Coveleskie has been Detroit's jinx this year.

Acquiring a Husband.

"There is too much smiling and ogling going on among the young people in the street cars nowadays," says Mrs. Freda Kupple, the shortgrass widow. Mrs. Kupple didn't even take the advantage of a face to face flirtation. She wrote her name on an egg she was about to take to town and the name was seen by a bartender in the act of making a gin fizz. The bartender finally became her first husband by telling her he was an actor.—Kansas City Star.

WORK BEGINS ON VAST AIR FLEET

Government Plan Calls for Huge Planes for an Army of 110,000 Fliers.

CARRY LOAD OF 8,800 POUNDS

Italian Triplane With Speed of 100 Miles an Hour, to Be Used as Model—To Profit by Allies' Experience.

Washington, D. C.—Vast airships, each driven by three 700-horse power engines, capable of carrying a military load of more than four tons, 8,800 pounds, and with a maximum speed of 100 miles an hour!

A navy of such great battleships of the air, surrounded and protected by a swarm of even swifter and much smaller battle planes!

If not the biggest and most important, certainly the most spectacular of all the present war plans of the United States are built around such a vision, writes Henry M. Hyde in the Chicago Tribune.

With the signing by President Wilson of the bill appropriating $640,000,000 for building, equipping, and manning an enormous navy of the air, these plans took a big step toward realization.

Huge triplanes of the power, speed, and weight carrying capacity described have been built and now are being tested in Italy. Triplanes of the same type, considerably smaller than the new giants but still of great size and power, now are in actual use in Italy.

The Italian triplane, driven by 900 horse power Caproni engines, for instance, will make a military load of more than three tons to a height of 6,500 feet in 35 minutes.

Defeat of U-Boats Seen.

The fact that these great machines cost $40,000 or more each will not prevent their being built in large numbers in the United States, once the necessary jigs, dies, and special tools are completed from the models furnished by the Italian government.

Many experts see in the creation of a fleet of such big airships, together with five or six times as many small fighting planes for their protection, the only certain method of defeating the submarine peril, of destroying munition plants and military and naval bases, and of swiftly driving the German army back behind the Rhine.

"The program for which this vast appropriation has just been made," said Howard E. Coffin, chairman of the aircraft production board, "must be carried out with a promptness equal to that of congress in passing the bill. Whatever crimes may later be laid at our doors, that of slowness in accomplishment must not be one of them. We are ready to go ahead at once."

Airplane Samples Coming.

"Within two weeks," went on Mr. Coffin, "samples of many airplanes now used by our allies on the European battle fronts will be on exhibition in the temporary building erected for the purpose at the rear of the Smithsonian institution. There they may be examined and studied by the manufacturers of the United States.

"In the matter of aircraft, as in other military matters, we have ceased to think nationally. Every step will be taken after conference and in full co-operation with our allies.

"We are in daily conference with representatives of the British, French, and Italian flying corps here in Washington, and a decision practically has been reached as to the exact part to be played by each of the allies in winning the war in the air.

"Our factories, of course, will have the advantage of copying the latest and best types of airplane engines devolved in France, Italy and England. Nor have our own inventors and designers been idle during the past three years. There now are engines of entirely American design and invention which weigh only two pounds to the horse power.

Three Training Fields Ready.

"Whatever may be the difficulty of turning out immediately in the United States the swift and delicate fighting planes of the latest type, we already are manufacturing in large numbers planes which are fitted for the training of air pilots and observers.

"Three of the 24 big aviation fields which we shall build for training our new air army already are completed, and the work of instruction is under way.

"The public generally has small idea of the immensity of these great training camps for birdmen. Camp Wilbur Wright, for instance, located near Dayton, O., home of the immortal inventor of the heavier-than-air flying machine, covers a tract of land measuring two miles by four miles. Its hangars stretch unbroken for a distance of two miles. These buildings will house 144 biplanes for the use of the embryo aviators. The United States will be the great training camp for aviators for all the allied armies."

One may get a faint idea of the almost incredible expansion which is proposed in the air branch of the military and naval arm of the United States forces by considering that while now there are only a few more than fifty commissioned officers in the aviation section of the signal corps of the army, it is proposed to increase it to a total of 110,000 officers and men.

RECORD TO DERRILL PRATT

Played in 360 Contests Before Compelled to Drop Out on Account of Sprained Wrist.

Derrill Pratt, the second baseman of the Browns, is the real holder of major league records for continuous service. A check of games by a St. Louis statistician shows that when he was compelled to drop out on April 30 because of a sprained wrist, he missed his first game after playing 360 contests. Pratt began his long stand with the Browns on September 2, 1914, when he resumed play after a layoff due to an injury to his side. From that date to the close of the season he was in 30 games. In Derrill Pratt.

1915 and in 1916 he played 158 games each year, then played the first 14 games of this season before compelled to drop out again. He missed two games in 1912 and two in 1913. In 1911 he played every scheduled game with the Montgomery team of the Southern league. George Burns and other claimants for continuous service will please take a back seat and their press agents lay off the bunk.

WORLD SERIES

Gab and Gossip

Only two members of the White Sox have ever been in a world series, Eddie Collins and Eddie Murphy. Of the Giants, Herzog, Fletcher, Zimmerman, Burns, Tesreau, Demaree and Gibson have seen world series service, all except Zimmerman and Gibson with the Giants. Gibson was with the Pirates of 1909 and Zimmerman with the Cubs in 1910.

Al Demaree landed in the big money through a system of trades which were lucky, at least for him. Starting the season with the Phillies he was first traded to the Cubs and then to the Giants.

The White Sox broke into the big classic back in 1906. Of the players then in the game only two are now in baseball, Fielder Jones who managed the club and now pilots the Browns, and Nick Altrock, official clown for the Nationals.

This is the first intersectional world series since 1910, when the Cubs and Athletics played.

Collins will be the real veteran, as this will be his fifth break into the classic. It is also McGraw's fifth year to manage a world series team. Herzog and Fletcher have each been up three years, Tesreau, two, and Burns, Demaree, Gibson and Zimmerman each one.

Eddie Murphy may prove the pinch hitting wonder of the series. Eddie has won more games by his pinch hits this year than any other American league bench warmer.

For the first time in many years two temperamental teams will be seen in a world series. The Athletics and Red Sox were both composed of "money players."

BRITAIN ADOPTS "UNWRITTEN LAW"

Frees Officer Who Killed Slacker to Save Wife's Hono r

Tender Love Letters Written by Capt. Malcolm Before Killing Bogus "Count" Melt Hearts of Jury and Slayer Is Acquitted.

London, England, Sept 20.—This is the story of Britain's first "unwritten law" acquittal of a man who killed.

What exceptional plot so touched an unemotional British jury as to establish that precedent?

This:

It is such a drama of love and war that the great world conflict, with all its upheaval of circumstances and ferment of human passions, has not elsewhere produced its equal.

It might be the theme of a master novelist. It is as elemental as an epic. It goes to the root of human motives.

It tells how two British juries decided Douglas Malcolm, lieutenant in the royal artillery, returning from the front in France to shoot the war slacker who as a bogus count had stolen his wife's affections, was not a murderer, and set him free. And in telling of this one tragedy it tells of all like it that the war can produce.

In the coroner's court at Paddington a woman sat. At first sight London called her "the woman of the Rossetti neck," for her beauty was classical, like that of a famous painting. She was on the witness stand.

"Mrs. Malcolm," said Coroner Byrne to "the woman with the Rossetti neck," "did your husband know the truth of your liason with the bogus 'Count' de Borch?"

"I told him," she replied, with a faint smile, "to divorce me—that there had been intimate relations between us."

The coroner looked at her, over his glasses. Then he picked up two papers from his desk and turned to the jury.

"In case of my death," he read, "I leave all my money to Mrs. Taylor of Vicarage cottage, Hertford Heath, and cancel my previous will.

"J. DOUGLAS MALCOLM."

It was written, the coroner explained, by Lieut. Malcolm, just before he went to the rooms of Anton Baumberg, alias Count de Borch, to fight out with him the possession of the officer's wife.

Then the coroner read the second paper, a letter from Lieut. Malcolm to his wife as the officer left for the bogus count's room, where he shot him with his army automatic:

"To My Own Very Darling Dorothie—Dear God! It is time! Everything points to it that this creature is the most unspeakable blackguard ever born. I shudder to think that he should even dare to speak to you. I simply cannot stand it any longer. I am going to thrash him until he is unrecognizable. I may shoot him if I think he has a gun. I expect he is too much of a cur to stand a thrashing. If the inevitable has to happen, of course, I may get it first. You see, I am quite cool. If that happens—O, believe me, my little darling, my beloved soul whom I love so absolutely—believe me, it is for you."

The coroner stopped and polished his glasses, then put them on the table and read on without them:

"I swear to you I love you more than a man has ever loved a woman before, and if there is anything wrong in me it is because I love you too much. You are a brave woman—a noble, honorable, upright one, with a beautiful soul. I believe in God. I said yesterday I didn't; but I do, I do, and I thank Him from the bottom of my heart that He sent me over from France in time to save you from this devil incarnate. Your honor is safe, thank God, thank God.

"Goodbye! I love you and shall go on loving you to eternity—forever. I know I shall meet you in the next world if the worst happens. When you come to me you will come with open arms and those beautiful eyes shining—and you will say to me, 'Duggie, I forgive you!' Forever, your loving husband. DOUGLAS."

Several times in the last paragraph the coroner stopped and turned and looked closely at the paper and then went on reading.

When the coroner's jury began its deliberations Mrs. Malcolm walked unmoved from the court room, without a tear in her eyes or a tremble on her lips.

While the coroner was reading the verdict of "justifiable homicide in self-defense," Lieut. Malcolm was being arraigned in Marleybone police court.

A delay until the court received the coroner's verdict was asked, and as it was granted the artillery officer arose in the dock and insisted upon speaking. He was tall, well built, about 34, and he swayed from side to side as he spoke:

"I see published a wicked and scurrilous report that my wife had intimate relations with this man. I swear it is false. You see, she is all alone, and has no one to look after her. It is false—absolutely false. Do you hear me? It is absolutely false, I say!"

His voice was growing higher, and the magistrate waved his arm hastily. The lieutenant was led out of court, crushing his soft hat between his hands.

The trial of Lieut. Malcolm in Marleybone court was formal—as formal as it could be, with the sympathies of spectators and jury, and even of the court and prosecution, not to be concealed.

The jurors heard of Lieutenant Malcolm's meeting with the Pole Baumberg, a war service slacker, at a garden party. It received details of his career as a ladies' man in his pose as "Count de Borch," and of his own admissions that he had no right to a title. His letters to other women, among them a German woman spy, were read.

How he exercised a strange fascination over Mrs. Malcolm, how her husband burst into a friend's house to find the "count" and "the woman with the Rossetti neck" together in the count's bedroom, how Lieut. Malcolm thrashed his wife's seducer and tried for months to force him into a duel in order to save his wife and spare her name from gossip—and how a pistol lay almost within the Pole's reach as he was found dead—details like these the witnesses' stories unfolded.

And the jurors drew in their minds a picture of a tall, tanned artillery officer, placing not only his life, but his home before his country as a war sacrifice, refusing to believe in his wife's dishonor when she herself protested it to him, proclaiming her virtue in one court while she was confessing her disgrace in another, loving her in the face of her protestations of love for her paramour and determined to save her when she was glad to be lost.

And—they acquitted him.

Which explains why there is a new precedent in British legal records.

MRS. LOUGLAS MALCOLM, "THE WOMAN WITH THE ROSSETTI NECK," LIEUTENANT DOUGLAS MALCOLM, OF THE ROYAL ARTILLERY, AND (INSET BELOW) ANTON BAUMBERG, ALIAS "COUNT DE BORCH," THE WAR SLACKER AND BOGUS "POLISH COUNT" OF WHOSE MURDER LIEUTENANT MALCOLM HAS JUST BEEN ACQUITTED.

League Has No Room for Labor Men

Representatives of Union Organization Given No Place on St. Paul Program

"POLITICIANS BARRED" IS TOWNLEY'S REPLY

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 20.—That they were refused a front seat at the feast of democracy represented by the Nonpartisan H. C. L. convention in St. Paul was a disappointment to members of the Minneapolis Trades and Labor assembly, 15 representatives of which occupied the attention of the officials of the Nonpartisan league this noon at the latter's headquarters.

The discussion, which Nonpartisan leaders said was devoted entirely to the subject of "Co-operation"—and which the Trades and Labor representatives in attendance admit was more specific in its application—arose, it is understood, from the fact that Mayor Van Lear of Minneapolis was not put on the program.

No Politicians on Program.

League officials say no public officials or politicians were put on the program except those necessary for addresses of welcome.

A delegation of the Minneapolis men called on Mayor Van Lear this noon, it is understood, to talk over the fact that he was not invited to speak.

Joseph Gilbert represented the Nonpartisan league at the discussion.

Organized labor was represented on this morning's program by George W. Lawson, secretary, St. Paul Trades and labor Assembly, which had no part in the dissension, it is understood.

Nonpartisan league officials say there are no difficulties which cannot be smoothed out.

Labor Men Attend.

Will organized labor in Minnesota give its support to the Nonpartisan league?

That is the main question buzzing up and down the corridors and in and out the convention.

It is known the Nonpartisan league want organized labor's support in Minnesota. Gov. L. J. Frazier, North Dakota, chairman of the convention today said the Nonpartisan league has had the support of organized labor in North Dakota and looks for the same in Minnesota.

Labor leaders of St. Paul and Minneapolis are on the floor of the convention, but most of them say they are looking on.

For Public Ownership.

Albert M. Todd, president of the National Ownership league, speaking before the conference of Producers and Consumers, here today declared that public ownership of all utilities and of natural resources necessary to the public welfare is fundamentally right; public ownership is politically right, since it promotes social justice, civic ideal and democracy.

"Studying the operations of the public utilities in our own country," said Mr. Todd, "the fact that first commanded attention was the economic injustice suffered by the public on account of the excessive and unjust rates, and the discrimination between citizens, by which a favored few enjoying secret rates and rebates, were quickly enabled to crush out competition and to obtain a monopoly of each kind of business. Thus, intelligence, industry and integrity were struck down through a most despotic usurpation of power by those entrusted with the conduct of governmental functions. The manner in which the Standard Oil company thus secured the destruction of its competitors, not on account of superior intelligence or ability, but through secret rates and rebates is but one of many examples of financial despotism practiced by the railroads in nearly every line of business."

Jeanette Has Her Say.

The nation is facing a shortage in copper, which with mines in Montana shut down was described as alarming by Miss Jeanette Rankin, representative in congress from Montana, in an address before the "Producers' and Consumers'" conference" here today. The demands of the Butte strikers are just, she said, and termed "unpatriotic," unjust demands by labor or capital during the war.

"The development of the country must depend upon the combined efforts of capital and labor," said Miss Rankin. "Both are necessary, and both must respect the just demands of each other if industry is to proceed. It is unpatriotic of either faction to make unjust demands. The demands that labor is making in Butte at the present time are reasonable and just and for the welfare of the country they should be respected.

BEACH PAYS ITS TRIBUTE TO BOYS WHO GO TO WAR

Wednesday Afternoon Devoted to Memorial in Honor of Members of Company M

Beach, N. D., Sept. 20.—On Wednesday afternoon the people of Beach and surrounding territory took a half-day off and dedicated it to honoring the members of company M, Second North Dakota infantry. At 2 o'clock a mammoth parade was formed under the direction of Charles L. Cook and Robt. A. Sprague, who acted as marshal and assistant. The parade was headed by the school children, preceded by the band and was followed by the mayor and city council, members of the Grand Army of the Republic, Mrs. E. H. Lovell and Mrs. M. F. Jones, president and secretary of the local Red Cross in automobiles, Company M, commanded by Lieut. Panison of the machine gun company of Dickinson, and citizens in autos.

The parade formed on Third avenue and after going over the principal streets of the city ended at the ball park, where an exhibition drill was given by the company. This was followed by speeches by Mayor Kastien, J. A. Kitchen of Sentinel Butte, Major W. S. Davis of Beach and Hon. L. F. Crawford of Sentinel Butte. The speeches concluded, the company was marched to the school grounds, where a most eatable feed of spring chicken and other good things were provided for the entertainment of the soldier boys, their mothers and sweethearts.

Something like 2,000 people participated in the demonstration which was a formal farewell to the company. In the evening a big dance was on under direction of the company, and taken as a whole the event was one which will long be remembered, not only by the people of this community but also by the boys, who will represent this territory in the world's fight for democracy.

LADY FIREBUG JUST LIT 'EM UP TO SEE 'EM BURN, SHE DID

Mandan, N. D., Sept. 20.—Katie Maissner, aged 15, lady firebug, on her confession that she has been responsible for a number of mysterious fires at her home town of Hebron in the last few weeks, has been committed to the state training school here. Some of the stunts for which she claims responsibility are the burning of a hay stack on her father's farm, causing a heavy loss; setting fire to Adam Beyer's home on two different occasions; firing the Sauter home in Hebron; stealing savings banks belonging to the children of Adam Beyer and stealing some $28. Aside from that she is a modest, well behaved young lady, whom anyone would be glad to have around. Her arrest and subsequent confession followed a two weeks' investigation by the state fire marshal's office and State's Attorney L. H. Connelly.
